GENERAL WOOL .- There is little doubt that this gentleman is a candidate for the nomination of the Democratic party for the Presidency of the United States. A sketch of his life and services, therefore, cannot be without interest to our readers, and that we to-day quote from the Boston Post of Monday is graphic and concise. Senators Cass, Dickinson, Houston, and Douglas, have great strength with the same party; but none of them can compare a military fame with that of General Wook. Nor are we sure that, in general intelligence and business talents, he is to be placed at a disadvantage in comparison with them.

It may be thought in the Democratic party that the prestige of General Scorr's name would prove too formidable in opposition to a mere civilian, and hence that a necessity for the nomination of General Woot, the best hero on their side, will arise, so imperative as to overshadow the claims of all others among their great and distinguished men.

That General Wook is a Democrat, good and true, has always been well known; but we believe he has not, in these latter days, been sufficiently identified with the current topics to enable us to locate him in any of the battalions mated; we will notice them hereafter. or divisions of that great army. Is he higher law, free soil, compromise, land reform, secession, or area extension? These are proper questions, and the sooner they be answered the present time nine men under sentence of death better-unless, indeed, the General shall be advised to the preservation of a discreet silence. If he adopt such advice, will his past political history lead us to correct conclusions in the premises?

It is said that General Scorr is to be silent as respects these matters; but then it is more than probable that his political antecedents will afford to both parties a fair index to his true Judge White, of a district adjacent to us, bore position. Secretiveness has not hitherto been a weakness of his; and any attempt to practise it now will profit him little. He has too long "worn his heart upon his sleeve for daws to peck at."

Behind General Scorr stand at this moment ral and Mr. WEBSTER there may be for a time vantage-ground. Mr. CLAY will, on this parti- derers escape; and, therefore, if the end of the cular occasion, assume the attitude of a waiter law-the security of society-can be best proon Providence, and perhaps desire only the moted by permitting offenders to live, let us voluntary offer of that which he was in all not strangle them. past times willing to stretch forth a strong and determined arm to obtain. What an unclouded, glorious political reputation had been his had he never fixed upon the gratification of a fruitless ambition as the recompense of his labors! How often has that reward appeared to invite the stretching forth his hand, and how often, like the gaudy butterfly, has it flown away as he would have pressed it! The evening is growing late with him, and even his great rival-follower - "the Nullifier of the Nullifiers"-bends under the weight of cares and of years, and rests the glance of his now failing eagle-eye upon the ground! MEN OF THE PRESENT surround them both, and are willing to take their places in the very moment that fortune shall favor the prospects of their party, or of a new party-in the very moment in which AVAILABILITY shall appear upon the standard, borne by more youthful and more vigorous Sie transit, and so forth.

What ample materials will not Congress at its next session possess, upon which to talk, to write, to caucus, to intrigue, to carouse-to do any thing but legislate. So interesting and instructive will be the career of that august body, that we rejoice in the prospect before us of witnessing its dignified proceedings. In the mean time, however, it will be well enough for us to give watchful and prayerful attention to the motions of the chaotic elements of all parties that now float in vagrant disregard of the laws of combination, cohesion, attraction, gravity, and sometimes of patriotism!

A SERENADING PARTY AND AN ACCIDENT .-The Band of the Washington Light Infantry, engaged by a party of gentlemen to serenade several of the successful candidates in the recent elections, and others; and, after visiting F. Bayly, and R. J. Roche, their vehicle, an immense omnibus belonging to the Citizens' Line, and containing twenty-five or thirty persons, was capsized by the breaking of the axletree. Mr. Wm. Horner, connected with the line, was unfortunate enough to have his leg broken, and several others were scratched and the Band were also injured, and some of them

Good feeling and good order had pervaded the party; and but for the unpleasant occurrence we have related, the occasion would have ended as one of unalloyed pleasure.

P. S.-We are informed that the loss of in struments by the Band amounts to some two or three hundred dollars. Cannot every one of us contribute something toward replacing them? We propose the measure in sincerity, and hope the proposition will be favorably received by our citizens. Mrs. Anderson has a fine assortment of such articles, from which a selection may be twelve hours. made, or she can obtain any that may be needed.

CIRCUIT COURT .- In the case of the heirs of Gen. Kosciusko, which commenced yesterday before the jury, a motion to dismiss the trial, made by the counsel of the defendants, was verruled by the court. The jury was then impannelled, the case opened by Major G. Tochman for the heirs, and then the counsel proceeded to take testimony. Objection was made by Mr. Morfit, who appears for Lewis Johnson, administrator of the estate, to the admission as evidence of Kosciusko's wills of 1806 and 1816, gold. to prove his domicil in France. After an able argument by the Hon. Reverdy Johnson, this objection was also overruled, and both papers were read to the jury as evidence. The court adjourned at half-past three o'clock until this morning at ten o'clock.

Circuit Court to-day .- In the case of the heirs of Gen. Kosciusko now before the jury, several other questions as to evidence arose. Arguments thereon were made by Messrs. Richard S. Cox and Morfit on the part of the defendants, Armstrong the legatee, and Lewis Johnson, the administrator. They were answered by Major G. Tochman, and at the time our paper is going to press the Hon. Reverdy Johnson is making an argument on the part of the heirs. We understand they will get through with these preliminary questions this afternoon To-morrow the jury will be addressed. The arguments are exceedingly interesting and ani-

> THE CENSUS OFFICE.-We learn that WM. Inving, esq., of New York, (a nephew of Washington Irving, we believe,) has been appointed Superintendent of the Census, ad interim. He has been for some time connected with the office, is a gentleman of high ability, and possesses the esteem and respect of the officers under him, all of whom have hailed his elevation with the liveliest pleasure.

A BEAU AND A BELLE .- Our friend Bloom is a bachelor, poor fellow; and a happy one he was, too, until he fell in love. But he loves to doating, as the more experienced wooers are very apt to do. Observing his dejected looks we undertook to chide him the other day; but he made us his confident, and said :

"I have been wedded for many years, and can new only wed by being first divorced!" We of course looked amazed and sorrow stricken, and Bloom proceeded :

"I have been wedded to cigars and tobacco. and now my chere amie bids me renounce them or her for ever. What shall I do ?"

THAT MOCKING-BIRD. TIS said that Poetry can move
The very Flowers and Trees to love;
That all Creation feels its away,
And all its mandates must obey.

Then this kind message thus I send To pretty Girls and gallant Men, To call on me; and they will find Good articles of every kind, Which I dispose of in my line.

A Mocking-Bird, with rural note, Sweet warbling from his mystic throat, With twinkling eye and bill, will tell Where, on Penn. avenue, I dwell; But, 'less too modest he should be,
